What's On

Note from the Editor

Quite often in my role with What's On I am asked to share pleas of help from the public across social media. These requests can take many forms and can cover a vast array of subjects.

Some ask me to share posts about a loved one that is missing, in which the outcome, sadly is not always the one desired.

I am often asked to post about lost property, and also receive lots of general questions that I then throw to my readers to respond to. A lot of the time before someone moves to the Fraser Coast, I am asked about the best schools, the safest suburbs, about jobs and different groups within the area. All of these I pass on to my readers and followers to respond to, and they do!

In a recent incident, a lady from out of town lost a bracelet of huge sentimental value, in a well-known park. Some of you actually went out in the dark with metal detectors to search. Other than the fact that the bracelet was found, this lovely lady leaves us with nothing but positivity about our region and its people.

It is at times like this that we really shine. We put away our differences, forget about our squabbles and truly become a community. The word community isn't just about a group of people living in the same neighbourhood, it is about people coming together, working side by side, supporting each other and striving for a better future.

Let's continue to help each other, to listen, to offer advice and to be there for each other in moments of need.

After all we are all in this together!

Cheers,
Kim Parnell

Inside this month's edition!
There is lots to see and do!

April is about loud music, breast cancer awareness, hot rods, and magic!

Australian rock n roll legend Jimmy Barnes talks to us about his new album. We also touch on his life, and the much anticipated By the C concert. There is a great line-up for this concert, so make sure that you purchase your tickets soon.

We meet local Kim Harris, So Brave Australia's Model Ambassador for 2019. Kim is a breast cancer survivor and will have her entire body painted all in the name of charity, she will also appear in a fundraising calendar later this year.

For the first time, the 24th Australian Hot Rod Nationals are coming to the Fraser Coast over the Easter long weekend. There will be activities for the whole family to enjoy. If you are into Hot Rods and Classic Cars this will be an event that you won't want to miss.

The Mother's Day Classic is always a great day for the whole family as you walk or run for the National Breast Cancer Foundation. Every cent helps fund much-needed breast cancer research so register today!

We have a chat with local identity Greig Bolderrow who was recently named the 2019 Fraser Coast Citizen of the Year. Having been born and bred in Maryborough, Greig is very passionate about our region, this shines through in each written word.

Another great family event this month is the Burrum Heads Easter Fishing Classic. Now into its 28th year, this event shows no sign of slowing down. What better way to spend a weekend than sun, water, food, competition, and ...fish!

Feel the magic of Celtic Illusion. With some of the fastest tap dancing that you will ever see, a great soundtrack and a stunning visual display, Celtic Illusion is a whirlwind of awesome choreography, colour and magical illusions that are set to enthrall.

Artist Pamela See brings her latest Art Exhibition called Breaking Ground to the Fraser Coast with some thought-provoking pieces. This solo presentation celebrates the 160th year anniversary of Maryborough being declared an immigration port.

Leah talks to us about trends and whether we should follow them, in her column Fashion with Leah. This is a monthly column full of hints, tips, and humour. I for one know nothing about fashion but love to be enlightened each month with Leah's column!

Jimmy Barnes

to Rock By The C

Get ready for the biggest concert of the year on the Fraser Coast, with By The C.

When you have a headline act such as Jimmy Barnes, you know that all of your rock and roll dreams are about to come true. The man himself will be playing all the songs that you know and love and introducing you to some new ones along the way. From Cold Chisel to a stellar solo career Jimmy Barnes has done it all, even being inducted into the ARIA Hall of Fame not once but twice. With live performances spanning over forty years, and two bestselling books under his belt, 'Barnesy' is showing no signs of slowing down.... Kim Parnell

What are some of your memories about life on the road with Iconic band Cold Chisel?

I have great memories of touring with Cold Chisel. The best thing about it wasn't the money or the travel. It was that feeling of us against the world. We were five guys who had only each other and we depended only on each other. Every night we went onto a new stage somewhere in Australia and worked our hardest to make some sort of impression on whoever happened to be there. Most nights in the early days people turned up randomly. They might have had a friend tell them something about us, or just wanted a night out and we were the only option. But whatever the reason they were there. We had a couple of hours to win them over or we might not see them again. We liked the challenge.

What did the years with Cold Chisel teach you as a musician and as a solo artist?

You have to work hard. Every single night is important. When you hit the stage, you have to put it all out there. There is no next time. Give them everything and leave nothing in the tank. Then, maybe they will come back. If you do this every night you might make a life out of live performance.

Tell us a little about your new album 'Criminal Record' that is coming out in May – What can we expect?

The album is sort of an extension of what I have learned from writing my two books. Taking those themes and writing about where they have taken me to now. There is definitely a sense of being ready to move on and play rock'n'roll again. But I think that the whole writing process has improved my songwriting a lot. There are songs that I have written with Don Walker that I am very proud of. Don and I have written together for many years, but I think that we found something special this time. A way of really getting things done. The songs are tough, gritty and most importantly, very real. At least to me. And one thing I learned from writing the books is that what affected me is not that different to what affects a lot of listeners out there. We are all trying to get by in life. We all struggle in our own way. And despite all our differences, we all have a lot in common. There are a couple of great songs written by and with Troy Cassar-Daley too. Troy is a great musician and an amazing writer, and I was so happy to get to work with him on this project. He knew what I wanted to say. Chris Cheney wrote a great song for me and I can see him becoming a great person to write with in the future. He is one of my favourite people. A great guitar player, songwriter and a great guy. And I have started writing with my son in law Ben Rodgers. We started writing together for the last Chisel record and we are doing really good things now.

As a bestselling author with Working Class Man and Working Class Boy, how confronting was it to write about your past?

It was very scary looking back. What I saw wasn't that pretty. It was hard and it was painful, but I needed to go back and deal with certain things or I was going to die. So yes, it was confronting but ultimately it was liberating.

What are the differences between the man Jimmy Barnes of the 70's and 80's and the Jimmy Barnes now?

I have grown. Not just grown up but grown as a human being. I think that I am a better person now. A better father, friend, partner, and a better singer. I like my own company a lot more. So, these days I can sit and look at what's going on in my life and not immediately want to hide in a bottle of vodka. I can face what's going on. It is still hard, but I now know that it won't go away and facing it, whatever it is, is better than running from it.

The art of songwriting is different for every artist I chat to, what is your process. What comes first the music or the words?

Most of the time the words come first. I constantly write phrases and little poems down. Either in the many books I carry around or into my phone. Then at some point I go back and look and see where they all fit. If I hear a piece of music that grabs me, I normally have a connection to something I have written down and then it is a matter of putting them together.

Have you visited the Fraser Coast before, if so when and what are your memories?

I have been there many times over the years. Some years it is hard to remember much because we were so wild, but others were very relaxed. It is a beautiful part of the world. I have watched whales and driven along the beach on Fraser Island, and I have done some wild rock shows in the area too. I am looking forward to coming back up to tear the place apart.

Do you have a special message to the people of the Fraser Coast about your upcoming performance in By The C?

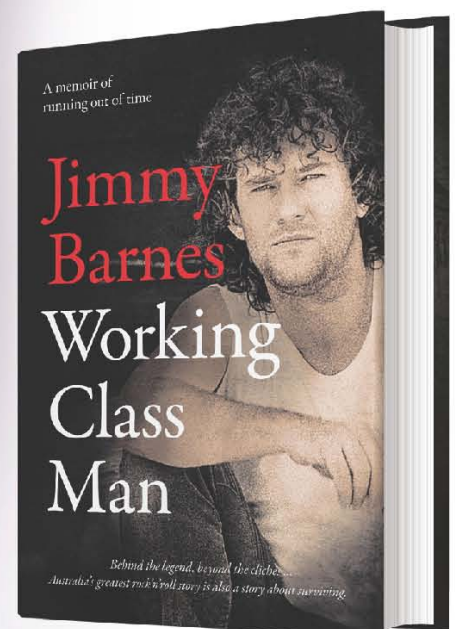

I am looking forward to playing for you all. My band is razor sharp and I will be playing you all some new work, as well as all the old hits too. Come and join us and we will have a ball.

24TH AUSTRALIAN STREET ROD NATIONALS

The Australian Hot Rod Nationals are coming to the Fraser Coast over the Easter long Weekend in April. This is the first time this National event has been held in Queensland outside of the South East corner. The organising committee are expecting over 800 Hot Rods and Classic cars to be on show at the showgrounds on Saturday 20th and Sunday the 21st of April.

Entries have been received from every State in Australia with the Hot Rods starting to converge on the Fraser Coast the week leading up to the Easter break. The Nationals are a closed event for the entrants only leading up to the public days.

On the public days along with the 'Show and Shine' there will be indoor and outdoor trade and novelty stalls, driving events, mini rods, rocker cover racing, Shannon's Big Rig, Ladies Pin up Competition, show rides and a wide array of food and beverages on sale, there will be enough entertainment for the whole family. Gates open at 9 am and close at 4 pm.

This may be your only chance to see over 800 Hot Rods dazzling with chrome and glitter up close and personal in the one location. So please come and play with us at the Maryborough Showgrounds.

Salt and pepper
Karaage chicken

and Asian salad @
Arkarra gardens

Ingredients - feed 4

Chicken

600g Diced chicken thigh
1x small knob Ginger and
30ml light soy sauce
2lt Vegetable oil - small deep fry on around 160-170
degrees
1 cup corn flour
2 tablespoons flour

Spice mix

1 tsp five spice
1 tsp castor sugar
½ tsp salt
½ tsp garlic powder

Asian slaw

¼ red cabbage
¼ cabbage
¼ red onion
¼ small wombok
½ bunch shallots
¼ bunch celery
1x carrot julienne
1x coriander bunch
Black or white sesame seeds

Dressing Nam-Jing

6 cloves garlic
4 small birds' eye chillies -
optional for food lovers
1 long red chilli
4 tbsp castor sugar
3 tbsp fish sauce
juice of 2 limes
1 tbsp finely chopped
coriander stalks and leave

Soy wasabi mayo

200ml soy milk
100ml white wine vinegar
1tsp Dijon mustard
Roast garlic (if available)
1tube of wasabi
1lt oil vegetable
10g Salt and 5g white pepper

Chicken

Combine the soy sauce and ginger in a bowl. Add the chicken and toss to coat. Marinate for 1 hour
Drain the chicken from the marinade and pat dry.
Prepare shallow fryer or deep fryer, by adding oil and heating to 170°C over medium-high heat.
Place combined flour on a plate. Add one-third of the chicken and toss to coat. Shake off any excess. Cook, turning halfway through cooking, for 4-5 minutes or until cooked through. Repeat, in 2 more batches reheating the oil between batches. Place finished product onto large plate with paper towel.
Sprinkle five spice mix over warm chicken.

Spice mix

Add all ingredients in a bowl and store - depending where you buy your five spice from if it is too strong add more castor sugar, fine salt or even a little paprika.

Nam- Jing

Place all ingredients in to food processor. If you like it sweeter add sugar, hotter add chilli, saltier add fish sauce or sour add more lime. Only add ¼ tea spoon at any time as it will throw the recipe out if you play too much.

Soy dressing

Add all ingredients except the oil in to food processor, pour oil in and thicken. This recipe is versatile if you don't like wasabi then don't add it.

Asian slaw

Shred all ingredients on mandolin or by peeler/grater. This is one of my staple salad bases as I can add and remove ingredients to make slaws and other dishes.

A bit about the Excelsior City Band

Maryborough's oldest brass band, the Excelsior City Band, was founded in 1913. But actually appears to have been traced back to the late 1880's when a group of musicians formed the Wide Bay Regimental Band which was in conjunction with the military defence establishment. In 1913 the Wide Bay Regimental Band was decommissioned and reformed as the Maryborough City Band.

The band is currently affiliated with the Queensland Band Association, and are always after new members. They rehearse every Wednesday night from 7.15pm at the band hall in the Mary River Parklands, next to Queens Park.

THE FUTURE LOOKS BRIGHT FOR OUR SPORTING KIDS

— With Youth Columnist, Jacob Kitson-Holebrook

Well where do I start - at the start I guess - it is extremely exciting to see the Fraser Coast Sports and Recreation Precinct now open for business. Offering State level facilities this leading edge Precinct will now be home to many of the amazing sports and leisure activities that the Bay and the Borough has to offer. Saturday 16th February 2019 was a land mark day for the Fraser Coast community as we finally were able to see firsthand the infrastructure that will help grow our local economy and aid our region in making its way to the top of the "must visit" list.

We will now be able to watch the local community thrive with the ability to hold bigger sporting competitions, grow club involvement and enhance the amazing experience of belonging to a sports team. Although this is the main reason that the Precinct has been built in the local community, the growth and expansion of the local tourism industry will also benefit from the introduction of this space. More and more events will be able to be held at this new facility attracting competitors and families from around Queensland which in turn naturally creates higher demand for shops, motels/hotels and other tourism amenities. With this growth comes the need for more jobs and this driver for change will bring on a chain reaction that will inevitably grow the community that we live in.

At the end of the day, the opening of this magnificent project is going to benefit the sports community, the business community and the local tourism community equally so why not have a look for yourself at what this Precinct has to offer. The grounds are open and available for the community to inspect during staffed hours. For more information on the project and its mission for the community, feel free to check out their website <https://www.frasercoast.qld.gov.au/fraser-coast-sports-precinct>.

Now get out there and get involved in your favourite sport knowing that your involvement will support your local community and make this beautiful region that we live in a better, brighter and possibly healthier place to call home.

COFFEE COLUMN

BEANS ON THE BAY

By Greg Lagstrom

Café Connections
Hervey bay

Domestic espresso machines come through the workshop for repairs all the time. They generally present with the same problems. Now it sounds as if we just want to get out of doing some work (which is completely true). You bought the machine in the first place because you wanted to make coffee at home just as well as they did in the cafe, right? Well, doing everything a good cafe does to make your $4 takeaway so exceptional is required at home too.

Big tip # 1 — Back flushing

If your machine has a three way or solenoid valve (check your manual) then back flush,!!

Most home machines make one or two coffees a day, then sit idle for 24hrs. If you don't back flush it's like eating a bowl of cereal, leaving the bowl on the bench and using it again the next day. Gross — and eventually you're going to run into problems. Read instructions in the manual or look them up on the internet.

Daily: After every coffee making session, you should back flush with water.

Weekly: Run the same process, this time with some espresso clean (1/4 tsp) and before taking it out, let it sit for a few minutes.

Tip # 2 — 98% of coffee is water.

Put good water into your machine. Bottled water. Australia's water supply contains a large amount of ground water and, particularly if you're in The Bay, heed this warning as tap water can be devastating to your machine. So if you want longevity from your machine, find the best quality, softest water possible. Good water will also make a dramatic improvement to your coffee quality.

Tip # 3 — Clean and open workspace

The cleaner you keep your workspace, the more your machine will love you. Roaches love warm electronic boards, and if they get in there, they can cause havoc. Quite simply, a dirty workspace will attract them, and the warm environment will make them call it home. Keep it all clean.

Coffee of the month:

Long Black Is the Australian version of the black coffee and is prepared by filling a porcelain cup $\frac{3}{4}$ full of boiling water and then pouring a double shot 60ml of coffee on top.

The coffee shops around town love me...not! I am one of those annoying customers that always without fail, will ask for a long black half-strength coffee with cold water on the side, The barista's probably cringe when they see me coming!

So I was curious as to what blend of coffee other people were drinking, and why.

I popped into BeanBeat, Scarness to ask this very pressing question!

COFFEE

what blend do you like?

"I like an Almond Latte with an extra shot, because the only milk you should drink is from your mother, ha,ha."

Cameron Mackay,
Bargara

"Definitely Iced Coffee with icecream and cream. It has to be extra icy, I have always liked the flavour."

Elaine Jordan,
Point Vernon

"I enjoy a Skinny Flat White. I find it a lot smoother than the Cappuccino which was always a bit to frothy."

Sandra Gill,
Warner/Brisbane

"I have chosen the Single Origin Nicaragua, this coffee has a low acidity, is quite fruity, and nice and light."

Tracee Kepler,
Scarness

THE PAST AND THE Present

With Greig Bolderrow

I have walked through the Gallipoli to Armistice memorial in Maryborough on several occasions, but a few weeks ago my experience was a little different as I had my very own Tour Guide, Greig Bolderrow.

He is engaging, warm, funny and very passionate about the memorial and about the Maryborough Walk of Achievers. In fact, Greig gives a lot to our community in many different capacities, which is why he was recently named the 2019 Fraser Coast Citizen of the year. – Kim, Editor

Tell us a bit about your childhood memories of growing up in Maryborough?

Back then it was all about the outdoors, you rode your bike everywhere. But by the time you got to grade 12 it was kind of uncool to ride a bike, so we would put our ports on the handlebars and walk with our bikes instead.

One of our favourite haunts as kids was Teddington Weir, they had a pool and a diving board, we would dive into Tinana Creek, and sometimes my mates and I would be gone for the whole day.

Sport played a large role in our lives growing up, for me it was Hockey and swimming.

Mum was a florist and had her own business in town, just down the road from Langers Broadway Shoe Store, which is still there today, Dad worked at the newspaper.

I also remember many wonderful holidays in Hervey Bay, it was always a special place as my Grandma and Granddad used to own the Pier Café at the end of the Urangan Pier, prior to the second world war and through to about 1942.

Tell us about your years in radio, how has radio changed today?

I joined the radio station 4MB, on the thirtieth of November 1971. I actually went on air as a relief announcer two days after I finished my senior exams. I had been doing work experience just before that, mum knew the boss. Not long after that the person that I was relieving left, and I was offered the job, that was my start in radio.

I started off doing the night time program, this was on air from 6pm and went through till 11pm at night, then the station closed down until 5.30am the next morning. Within twelve months I was doing the breakfast program, I continued to do this for five or six years.

During my time in radio I have interviewed many people including lots of prime ministers and entertainers, everyone from Johnny O Keefe through to Kamal.

I would say the most memorable interview was with a gentleman named Warren Mitchell, he played the part of Alf Garnett in a television show on the BBC called Till Death Us Do Part. He was touring Australia with his one man show which was called The Thoughts of Chairman Alf. Everyone knew him as a comedian back then. He was also one of the most talented Shakespearian actors I have ever had the pleasure to watch. Well one day he came in and did the breakfast show with me. I remember he was due in at 7 am, and I was there at 5am getting ready to go on air, when a buzzer sounded and it was Warren saying...Hello, it is Warren Mitchell here, sorry I am a bit early... well suffice to say, he ended up doing the whole of the breakfast show with me, not just his hour, it was a great broadcast! I have spent many years in radio across many stations.

From a listener's point of view radio probably hasn't changed much. But from an inside view there is less advertising per hour now, and everything is almost totally automated. There's no records, no cassettes, and very few live reads on commercials.

What is the significance of the Gallipoli to Armistice memorial?

It is a memorial to honour the sacrifice made by so many Maryborough men and women in not only that campaign but the second world war, Korea, Malaysia, Vietnam and now Afghanistan. Yes, it is about the memories of the soldiers from Gallipoli and world war I, but it is a memorial to all soldiers, nurses and personnel that have sacrificed a hell of a lot to give us what we have today.

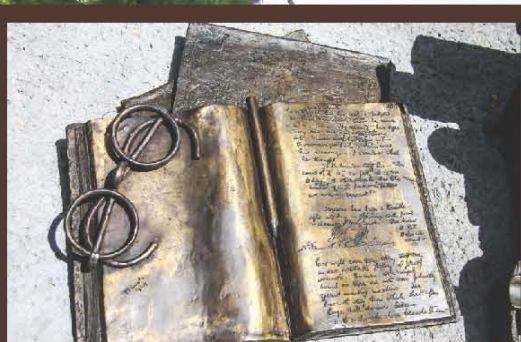

Story continued on the next page...

It is proving to be an incredible attraction, with bus tours coming in, some for the first time after seeing the memorial, they now make Maryborough a place to visit. John Myers from the Maryborough Colonial Military Museum has started organising school tours as part of the school curriculum, so this is ideal.

How did it feel to win Fraser Coast Citizen of the year in this year's Australia Day Awards?

Incredible, that was a total surprise and an absolute honour. We all got an email saying that we had been nominated for an Australia Day Award, but it wasn't until the presentation that I found out which one.

What does the future of the Fraser Coast look like in your eyes?

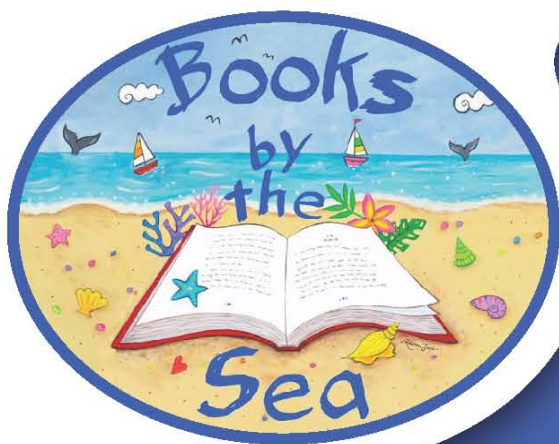

Rosy – We have had a huge year as far as tourism is concerned. We were very fortunate that Harry and Meagan visited Fraser Island, that was just a huge boost. People can also now dive the Tobruk. We have got such wonderful assets right here, not only have we got Fraser Island and Lady Elliot Island on our doorstep, but we also have beautiful beaches in Hervey Bay, and the incredible whales. Maryborough has the incredible history and magnificent buildings, we also have vast rural surrounds, everything is just ripe for the picking.

We have also seen an economic boost injected into the region, we have Walkers being awarded the contract to repair the new rolling stock. Then there is the munitions factory getting off the ground in Maryborough.

In all honesty I see more positivity on the Fraser Coast in the last twelve months, than I have seen in years.

Do you have a message to the people of the Fraser Coast?

In my acceptance speech for citizen of the year I talked about great innovative companies that are putting money back into the community, and as a closing statement I said, "Those of you that know me would know that I worked in radio for a very long time. That may have just sounded like a commercial for the Fraser Coast, and it was, It's a bloody good product. Buy it, love it, be proud of it!"

ART EXHIBITION

Breaking Ground

This solo presentation by Chinese Australian artist Pamela See (Xue Mei-Ling) celebrates the 160th year anniversary of Maryborough being declared an immigration port. The title, 'Breaking Ground', references the short-term leasing of allotments to Chinese migrants during the nineteenth century. This arrangement benefited both the 'aliens', who could not purchase property, and the European settlers to whom the land was returned cleared and 'fit for cultivation'. A range of industries that utilised the port have been explored in the artworks. Prior to the gold rush, which commenced with the discovery of gold by James Nash in 1867, timber and wool were amongst the key. The prolific importation of goods by the Chinese community from colonial times has also been illustrated.

See is presently undertaking a PhD at Griffith University. Her research focuses on post-digital applications for papercutting. The perforation of paper to record information dates back to the First Dynasty of Egypt (c.3150 – c.2890 BCE), when incised papyrus parchment provided a mobile alternative to inscribed clay tablets. The invention of modern pulp-strained paper in 105 CE is attributed the Chinese eunuch Cai Lun. The style of papercutting that is broadly recognised as traditional Chinese developed in the agricultural region near the Yangzi River between the fourth and sixth centuries. See's technique bears resemblance to Foshan papercutting, which is endemic to her maternal home province of Fujian. Emerging during the Song Dynasty (960 – 1279 CE) this style is applied to both paper and thin foils of metal.

The artworks in Breaking Ground range in materials from knitted blankets to acrylic sculptures. It also contains papercut portraits of prominent members of the Maryborough Chinese community: George Hing, Sidney Shang and James Chiam.

See was born in Brisbane to first generation Chinese Australians. Since 1997, she has contributed to exhibitions in Australia, China and the United States of America. This includes initiatives at The Qing Tong Museum (China), International Studios and Curatorial Program (New York) and the Queensland Art Gallery. Collections to house See's artwork include the National Gallery of Australia, the Art Gallery of South Australia and Parliament House.

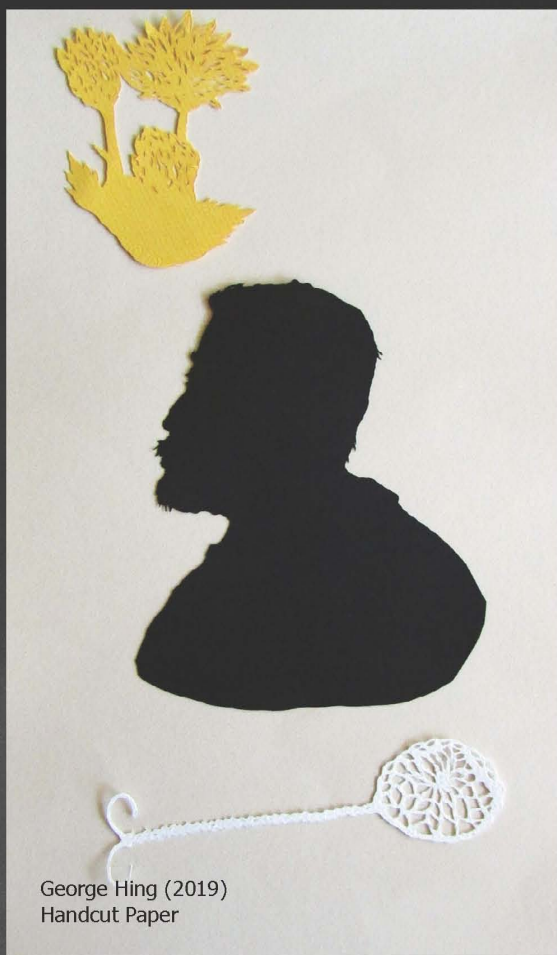

In 2005 she received a General Funding Grant from the Australia China Council, which enabled her to research papercutting in a number of regional centres in China including Shandong Province, Xian Province and Guangdong Province. In 2006 she undertook a residency in the Beijing-based foundry the Pickled Art Center, with the support of a Brisbane City Council Creative Sparks Grant. In 2009 she received a Professional Development Grant from the Australia Council for the Arts. This enabled her to undertake a residency at the University of Massachusetts and contribute to the Conflux Festival in New York City and The Fingers Lake Environmental Film Festival in Ithaca NY.

Fashion

To trend or not to trend

Trends are a wonderful topic to bring up! They are exciting, evoke fashion creativity and inspire us to 'think differently' about how we dress.

The most obvious current trend hitting the shops right now is animal print. Whether you love it (I love it!) or despise it, it's there in our faces at every retailer's corner you turn! It's in playsuits, kimonos, pants, shorts and cami's. It's in scarves, earrings, bangles and boots, wherever you turn you can't help but get smacked in the face by some glorious leopard print! So, do you have to wear it?

I will ultimately always come back to my core piece of advice when it comes to fashion and styling. If you like the trend and the trend likes you then wear it sister! But, wear it to suit YOU! Let's break this down a tad...if you have a triangle shaped body (larger bottom half than top half), steer away from wearing print on your toosh area and don it in all its glory on your top half. Or better still, wear it all the way through from top to tail. There is no better way to diffuse the lines and bumpy bits on our bodies and fooling the human eye by wearing print the whole way through.

If you're sitting on the fence in regards to your love or hate relationship with animal prints, perhaps aim to add them subtly first just to test the waters! An epic leopard print stiletto, or snakeskin boot is a wonderfully modern and chic way of adding a bit of the wild side to your wardrobe. Scarves, statement earrings or bangles will also do the trick.

The other important aspect of trends to point out is colours. Colour trends can be both wonderful and destructive all at the same time. Remember that glorious deep mustard trend that hit the shops last autumn? I loved that colour trend, but that colour trend doesn't love me. It instantly washes me out and gives me that 1st trimester pregnancy hurl fest look! Does it mean I can't wear it? Not really, just not up around my face. I could wear it in a skirt, pants, shorts or even a rad pair of wedges. This way you can get the best of both worlds. Still wear that trend colour, but not in the areas where it'll drown you out. You can thus apply this to most colour trends. Black will always come in and out of trends and it can really kill it for some women. If you're in this boat and black just drains you, then opt to wear it wisely. Steer away from putting it right up next to your face. Think creatively in how you can still include that favourite trend colour without aging yourself 20 years in the meantime!

Just remember, trends are a marketing tool to encourage you to buy clothes (harsh and true!). You can have a field day with them but wear them to suit your unique body and personality. Take the bits out of trends that will suit you. In all reality you can probably wear most trends that come out, but just use them wisely.

Just remember that you are unique! You have a unique personality, fashion style and way to look at the world. Whether that be conservative, quirky, glamorous, eclectic, alternate, chic, sexy, country, effortless, whichever you are its glorious and your style should reflect this. Whether that means you incorporate trends in your fashion or not, stick to your uniqueness. That's what other humans will comment on the most.

THE Wild beauty OF FRASER ISLAND

Written by Kim Parnell

As readers of this magazine would know, each year I go camping with a small group of great friends, on our Annual Girls Trip Away to Fraser Island, and this year was no different.

Now into our fifth year, we still haven't seen the whole island, but the truth is, it is highly unlikely that we ever will as there is just too much to see.

When weather permits we camp on the beach in swags and 'rough' it. If there are major weather events, as there was on our recent trip, we listen to the latest advice and seek accommodation, usually at Happy Valley, Eurong or at Second Valley until the bad weather has passed.

We do a lot of four-wheel driving, which usually involves clearing the track ahead of trees and debris. Once we get within range of our destination we hike the rest of the way, you really do see much more walking on the many tracks available on Fraser Island, other than driving.

On this trip, we hiked to a couple of historical sites that I had never been to before, including Petrie's Camp which was an old forest station from 1913-1916. While there is not much left except for a few stumps, you get a sense of the place and the people that have come here before you.

We also popped into the Valley of the Giants, this is another one of my favourite places to explore. Here you will see the largest remaining trees on the island including the spectacular and huge satinay trees. The air is moist and still, while the sun finds it almost impossible to penetrate through the tall trees. Beneath your feet in places is a carpet of green moss, if you close your eyes you could almost believe that you were in a magical forest. I have often wished that the trees could talk, what stories they would tell!

We visited Lake Birrabeen and went for a swim and a hike at Lake Boomajin, the scenery here is stunning, as the water was so low the coffee rock was exposed. We were also able to walk from one bank to another, this was a special treat.

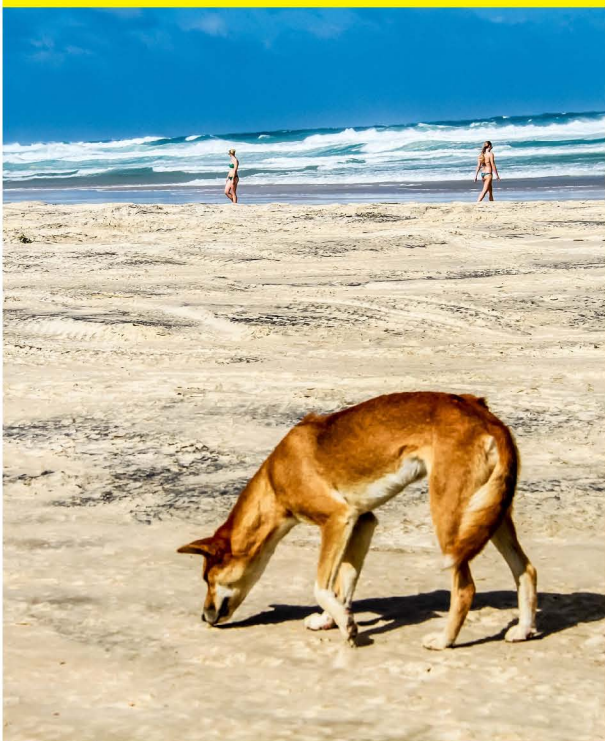

The four-wheel driving tracks can be challenging, but make some of the more interesting places accessible that are off the beaten track. Sometimes you can walk or drive on the inland tracks without seeing another soul for hours.

Going to Fraser Island is always a photographic event as there is so much to see, from wildlife to the gorgeous sandy beaches the deep forest, and the many natural lakes. You can't help but snap away!

We do lots of exploring, and never go hungry. With many challenges to face along the way, this is the time for some of us to push past inhibitions and to face fears.

No trip is complete without lunch and a refreshing liquid beverage at Kingfisher Bay Resort before heading home on the barge!

To us, it doesn't really matter what the weather does as we always make the most of every trip, there is always something new that happens, or a new experience to be had. The Fraser we see is wild and untamed, and that's exactly how we like it. Until next year...Thanks for the memories Carol & Cathy!

Immerse yourself in the magic of CELTIC ILLUSION

World-first stage show Celtic Illusion is set to tour Queensland, New South Wales and Victoria with its breathtaking fusion of modern Irish dance and spell binding magic in April!

We are excited to be performing the show throughout Australia and audiences will have access to this much-anticipated family event - which has taken Australian and New Zealand audiences by storm.

"Celtic Illusion showcases a stellar cast of champion and internationally acclaimed dancers, including performers from Riverdance and Lord of the Dance," said Anthony Street, Celtic Illusion's director, producer, choreographer and lead dancer.

Celtic Illusion has enjoyed great success, regularly performing to sell-out audiences since the show premiered in 2011.

Audiences will be impressed by some of the fastest tap dancing in the world, not to mention an incredible soundtrack composed by a stellar team including Angela Little who co-composed Baz Luhrman's film Australia, as well as Steve Skinner who has arranged and produced for artists such as Celine Dion, Stevie Wonder and the Broadway musical Rent."

Street is the creative mastermind behind Celtic Illusion and has an interesting story - not unlike that of Billy Elliot. Born and raised in Melbourne, Street lives a double life; getting his hands dirty as a demolition worker by day and lighting up the stage as lead dancer for the show by night.

Street grew up surrounded by motorbikes, racing cars, hunting and football before he first fell in love with Riverdance and, with the assistance of his grandmother, he began secretly taking Irish dancing lessons. Today he is a world-renowned dancer, recognised as the first Australian to perform the lead role in Michael Flatley's widely acclaimed Lord of the Dance as well as being responsible for the dance and magical sensation Celtic Illusion.

Still on a high from the success of its recent tours, which included a marquee performance at Her Majesty's Theatre in Melbourne as well as sell out shows across South Australia and New Zealand, Celtic Illusion boasts electrifying new choreography with the Irish dance and magical illusion spectacular set to blow audiences away.

Now is your chance to witness the magic that is Celtic Illusion!

MZAZA

The Tsourekí Tour

Award-winning French/Balkan folk band tours South East Qld

MZAZA invite you to join them on their Tsourekí Tour. Leading up to Easter, a time of the year when weird and wonderful things have been reported to happen, this group of generous musicians from Australia and Europe will weave their way through South East Queensland like the plaits of a Greek Easter bread. Lead by enchanting French-Sephardic vocalist Pauline Maudy, these six musicians from Bosnia, Latvia, Greece, France and Australia have been known to deliver inspired performances driven by their eclectic backgrounds and European influences.

Recently returned from recording a third studio album in Greece (rumoured to be due for release late 2019), the group is looking forward to performing to audiences in Brisbane, Maryborough, Pomona and Ipswich.

On April 13 the band returns to Gatakers Artspace in Maryborough after a very successful performance there in 2018, closely followed by a very special show on April 14 at the magnificent Majestic Theatre in Pomona where the group will reunite with their faithful Sunshine Coast following and also offer a singing workshop lead by MZAZA front-woman Pauline who will share her French and Ladino (Jewish-Spanish) ancestry through song. Last but not least, on April 27th, MZAZA return to Ipswich's Studio 188 for a show as well as singing and instrumental workshops. Instrumentalists who attend the workshop will get an introduction to the rhythms of the Balkans and the opportunity to play along with MZAZA's talented musicians.

Two-time Queensland Music Award winners MZAZA describe their music as "Balkan French sounds for sophisticated folk lovers around the world". The group started 15 years ago, and has toured around Australia, Europe and visited the airwaves internationally.

The musicianship of MZAZA is realised with accordion, violin, percussion, double bass and Flamenco guitar and celebrates diversity, the old and the new, the familiar and the foreign, through timeless melodies.

2019 So Brave Model and Brand Ambassador - Kim Harris

MEET Kim Harris

– 2019 SO BRAVE AMBASSADOR

Local Kim Harris, breast cancer survivor features in a national body paint artwork calendar to raise funds and awareness for breast cancer in young women.

So Brave, Australia's Young Women's Breast Cancer Charity welcomes local Hervey Bay resident, Kim Harris as Model Ambassador in 2019.

So Brave, Australia's Young Women's Breast Cancer Charity is now in its fourth year and raises awareness and funding for breast cancer research whilst empowering young breast cancer survivors.

Local So Brave model, Kim Harris, age 37 was only 30 years old when diagnosed with breast cancer. Kim will be transformed by body-paint artist Wendy Fantazia and will feature in the 2020 (fourth) annual breast cancer fundraising calendar which launches later this year in September.

So Brave model Kim Harris, says:

"The reason I chose to participate in the So Brave 2020 breast cancer fundraising calendar is because I feel very passionately about helping prevent breast cancer happening to other young women who may be in the same situation in their lives as I was when I was first diagnosed. I feel it's important to spread awareness to every female about being breast aware, and through the calendar I can help those that have or are going through treatment know that there is and can be still colour in their lives.

Each year So Brave creates a captivating fundraising calendar featuring 12 young women who are breast cancer survivors. The women are transformed with body art and are photographed for the annual fundraising calendar. The photographs depict the metamorphosis that each young woman has gone through during their body paint photoshoot and breast cancer journey.

Young breast cancer survivor, CEO and Founder of So Brave, Rachelle Panitz, states:

"The calendar is a celebration of the women and of their bravery in facing breast cancer, and in sharing in this bodypainting experience to raise awareness and money to fight this disease. Our young breast cancer survivors truly are SO BRAVE"

So Brave has transformed 36 young breast cancer survivors. All survivors were diagnosed with breast cancer before they turned 40.

The 2020 calendar will feature young women from Victoria, Queensland, WA and South Australia. This is the first time So Brave has been to Bunbury, Western Australia and Long Plains and Tailm Bend, South Australia.

The 2019 calendar (still available for sale) launched on the 14th of September in Melbourne. All of the models gathered to see their artwork featured in the calendar.

Rachelle concludes: "So Brave continues to go from strength to strength and it's amazing to think we're doing this all again for our fourth year. We are thrilled to be able to bring our beautiful imagery and mission to raise awareness to even more communities across Australia."

"Our body painted young breast cancer survivors are iconic to our brand and signify the amazing beauty, strength and bravery of these young women. We hope to continue to raise awareness across Australia and fund vital research and education to ensure the next generation has better diagnosis, prevention, treatment and monitoring for breast cancer."

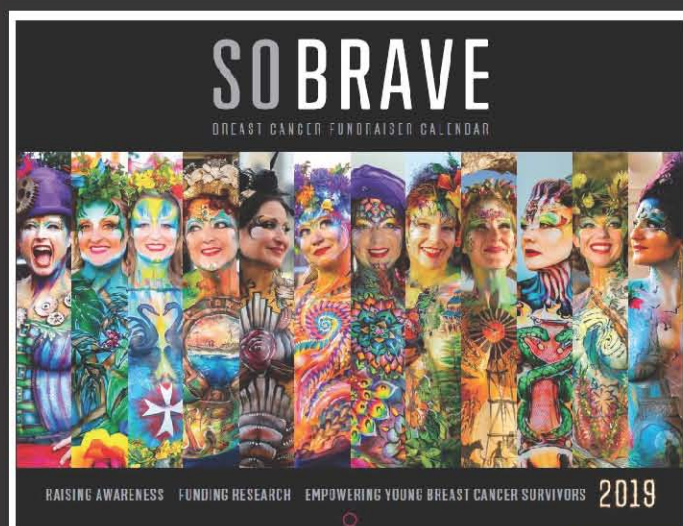

"Funds raised from our events and sales of our Calendars go to So Brave's mission programs of empowerment, education and advocacy and directly funding breast cancer research."
